

TRINH DUY LUANThe added awareness of social justice and its implement in our country nowadays

The article has dealt with social justice in relation to economic growth in concrete historical conditions of Vietnam for the last two decades of doi moi. By linking theories to Vietnam practice the article has analyzed the following aspects: the Marxist viewpoint of social justice in history and under socialism; the implement of social justice in different economic growth models; Ho Chi Minh's conception of social justice; social justice issues in modern developmental thoughts; social justice and its implement from a sociological approach; additional awareness of social justice and the combination of economic growth and social justice in political documents of Vietnam communist party and the state.

BUI DINH THANHSome thoughts of the state's role in relation to civil society

The article has analyzed the state's role in relation to civil society in present Vietnam. The author has summed up some of Marx's main principles about the state and civil society. The author also has shown the long-lasting values as well as the aspects that need to be examined in the present context. With regard to the state's role in relation to civil society in present Vietnam, the author has proposed the following principal aspects: comprehensive renovation of thinking in industrialization and modernization; enhancing the effectiveness of the rule-by-law state; enhancing social management and renewing leadership styles.

DANG NGUYEN ANHMigration policies to new economic zones in Vietnam

The article has reviewed four periods of migration history to new economic zones in Vietnam: the periods of 1961-1975, 1976-1985, 1986-1995 and 1996 up to now. The author has given a deep analysis of achievements and shortcomings of migration to new economic zones. To further promote the achievements and overcome the shortcomings the author has proposed the following solutions: enhancing the migration policy-making capacity; renovating the population planning and land use management policy; enhancing the design and implement of migration projects.

TRUONG XUAN TRUONG

The role of mass media in the present period of industrialization and modernization

The article has analyzed the development of mass media in our country and emphasized that the mass media have always followed closely the country's political, economic and social activities and spread the party's and the state's lines and policies, expressed the rightful wishes of population strata, and made positive contributions to fulfilling the country's development aims. This has all created an open and democratic atmosphere and made important contributions to maintaining political and social stability. The article has also shown the limitations of mass media in our country (the uneven spread of information, commercialization tendency and some deviance, etc.) and the ways to overcome them.

NGUYEN HUU MINH

Gender in domestic division of labor

Industrialization has created many job opportunities for women and increased their participation in social labor forces. Women's contribution to family income has also risen. These factors have increased their husbands' involvement in domestic work. The author has argued that one can find the causes of the above transformations in such variables as living areas (urban-rural); occupation; education; family life cycle; contribution to family income and gender prejudice. The article has also raised some problems on approach methods and analysis techniques in studies about gender division of domestic work in the current family of Vietnam.